It has been a long summer for some. The monotony of working every day, missing friends and constantly obeying parents is taking its toll. You deny the urgency you feel for returning to campus — close quarters, noise, rotten food and cold showers. But deep down, you can't wait for the day you begin to pack. A mental plan for getting the most in the space in your car dominates your mind. Returning to UofE for your second, third, or fourth year seemed like it would never happen.

Upperclassman anticipation is shared with others. Future freshmen debate about what to bring, which address book to fill, and washing instructions from Mom for wool clothes.

Leaving your hometown and people you grew up with can be scary. The week or so of adjustment deemed "orientation" cushions the blow somewhat. Ice cream socials, greek parties, picnics and entertainment monopolize free time so you can't get homesick — yet!

Normal school routines begin before you've caught your breath. Discovering where your classes are and how they differ from high school is always a challenge. Adjusting to dorm life is not always easy, either. Sharing your space with a stranger is trying.

For most students, the adjustments are made easily and you fall into the mainstream of college life. Athletics, films, and Greek and G.D.I. activities consume your time and energy . . . as do doing laundry, washing pop-corn poppers, and returning borrowed clothes. ♠

Top Moving your things can create organized havoc, but only to someone who has never moved into a dorm. Bottom Left — Students at the annual Parents' Picnic enjoyed the warm afternoon and socializing almost as much as the hot dogs that were served. Bottom Middle — Selecting classes for the quarter can be a job that requires heavy concentration. Bottom Right — Freshmen students treat themselves to ice cream at the President's rose garden social.

Bottom Right — Parents and students alike enjoyed the picnic held on Morton Hall's lawn. Top Right — At the years beginning, even Harper's food tastes good. Several parents questioned their children as to why they complained about the food so much. Top Middle — Mast of the time moving in requires the help of family members, plus orange and silver U-Haul trailers. Right — Finally settled in, Hughes Hall freshmen are treated to the annual "Rookie" in the shower night.

"School days, school days, dear old golden rule days . . ." Believe it or not, your parents probably sang that song. Today they would get lost before one verse of "my blood runs cold, my angel is a center fold . . ." Although it seems like you never had anything in common, being a freshman in the "stone age" really wasn't much different than today.

When your parents were in your shoes as freshman, they probably wore pods. You know, those are the little hats sorority girls wear now. Then, no matter who you were, the pod set you apart from upper-classmen. Actually it made you easier prey for practical jokes, dirty jobs or anything else the Seniors could think of.

Fashion for the day included Bermuda "Fever," bright colored tall socks, and bare knees. Far cries from plastic pants, metallic knee socks and bare everything? Not really.

"it's great to look down on all the freshman

Students hung out at the Union Building. Although this is done today, most students don't know where the Union is until Senior picture time.

The feeling is about the same on every college campus. As summed up by UofE student Harry Sikma, "it's great to look down on all the freshman and know exactly what they're going through . . ."

The big consolation is that you only have to be a freshman once (if you're lucky!). One year of misery in return for three of dominance. ♣

Most of my friends here are University of Evansville basketball fans.

They're good people. They want little more from a UE game than an entertaining evening and a victory for the home team.

They attend games loyally, spend lots of money on UE basketball and are a major reason the program has been so successful.

However, there are a few UE fans who are giving all the others a bad reputation. They'd do the Aces a favor if they stayed home.

They became a focus of attention Monday night in UE's game with Detroit at Roberts Stadium.

When Richie Johnson, UE's talented sophomore forward, was injured in a fall, most fans watched with concern as doctors and trainers worked on his limp body.

However, a few of the spectators seated in the closed end of the Stadium, behaved like a bunch of rednecks at a mud wrestling match.

They threw ice and peanuts at the Detroit players and coaches who attempted to approach Johnson and check his condition.

And they became surly with Bob Gwaltney and Cliff McBride, two photographers shooting the game for the Press.

When Gwaltney and McBride got into position to take pictures of Johnson, some fans angrily shouted at the photographers to move away from the scene.

Tom Johnson and Jeff Rumsey, two University of Evansville cheerleaders who were on the floor during the game, were upset with the fan's reaction.

"It was ridiculous some of the things that happened," said Johnson.

However, he wasn't surprised. He said it isn't unusual for cheerleaders to be confronted by rude fans at UE home games.

Johnson said while UE's male cheerleaders were lifting the female cheerleaders into the air, a fan said to them, "I hope you drop one of the girls."

It's troubling to think such people exist, and it's especially discouraging to see them lashing out at people during a sporting event.

Spectators with even a limited knowledge of basketball surely realized no Detroit coach or player was responsible for Johnson's accident.

Detroit guard Roy Simms was heading for an easy layup when Johnson leaped into the air and grabbed him from behind before losing his balance and crashing to the floor.

It was Simms who had every reason to be upset. Johnson's blindside show was dangerous. He caused his own injury.

Simms appeared ready to fight Johnson until he realized the UE forward was injured. Simms later tried to console Johnson as he was carried off on a stretcher.

Why fans got angry with the photographers is a puzzle. They don't get their kicks shooting pictures of people in pain. It's there job to get pictures of a news event.

Gwaltney and McBride, in their efforts to get the best pictures possible, didn't interfere with the doctors attending Johnson, or hinder the proceedings in any way.

Still, Gwaltney said fans yelled at him, "Get that camera out of here," or "Get that camera down," or "Who is that cameraman for, Detroit?"

Later that night, Gwaltney stopped at a 24-hour restaurant. Kenny Perry, UE's sophomore center and a close friend of Richie Johnson's, also was there. Perry asked Gwaltney to join him.

"Perry told me it was all right to have taken the pictures," Gwaltney said. "He told me everyone else was nuts. He said the players realize I was just doing my job. That made me feel a little better."

UE fans also received criticism for leaving the game long before its conclusion.

A mass exodus began when UE trailed by 10 points with about four minutes to play. By the time UE closed to within two points with four seconds left, about half of the original crowd of 10,696 had departed.

Cheerleaders Johnson and Rumsey were particularly upset.

"When I looked up into the stands and saw them half-empty, I said to myself, 'I don't believe this,'" said Rumsey. "It's just unreal. People here want their team to be ranked in the top 20, but they don't want to support the team."

Said Tom Johnson . . . "They support the team when it wins. But when it loses, they just take off."

The cheerleaders said it's not uncommon for people — especially those in the first rows — to tell them to stop cheering.

"They tell us to sit down and get out of the way," said Johnson.

Johnson and Rumsey said UE has too many middle-aged and elderly fans who don't want to participate in the cheers.

"It seems like they'd have more fun staying home and watching the game on TV," said Rumsey, "because they don't want to participate."

He thinks UE's cheerleaders do a good job of trying to inspire the crowd. We're trying a lot of different things. But it's discouraging when we try new things and no one seems to care."

I think most Aces fans do care. Some of them just show it in a funny way.

only time will tell

As a whole 1981-1982 was a dull year. That is if you call a royal wedding, assassinations, wars and space shuttles dull.

An attempt was made on the life of President Ronald Reagan March 20. The gunman, John Hinckley Jr., only wanted to gain the attention of actress Jody Foster. His efforts left press secretary James Brady and two others shot. President Reagan himself received a bullet just inches from his heart.

Reagan was lucky but Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was not. While attending a military parade, gunmen dressed as soldiers jumped from trucks and opened fire on the reviewing stand. Several other officials were killed. Sadat died while in hospital care a few hours later.

Making good the saying bad news travels in groups of three, an attempt was also made on Pope John Paul the second's life. The Catholic leader was hospitalized with complications for weeks before recovering.

Probably the most exciting event, at least most publicized was the royal wedding of Prince Charles of Wales and Lady Diana Spencer. Lady Di not only captured the heart of the most eligible bachelor in England but the hearts of the whole world as well. Here in Evansville those who were able to get out of bed at 5 o'clock a.m., were treated to a fairytale wedding complete with horse-drawn carriages.

Spectical was not limited to merry old England. The colonies made their own attempts to capture attention.

The space shuttle Columbia made three successful journeys into space. Each time bringing back a better understanding for future generations in the area of space travel.

While things basically were going well at home, overlooking high unemployment and inflation, Poland seemed to have big problems.

All began with Solidarity an organization of workers who wanted better conditions. Troops were moved in by Russia in attempts to stifle protests but not before the movement had grown in popularity and support from the whole world.

It was an eventful year around the world, one that will no doubt have lasting impact on all our lives, only time will tell. ♣

Was it the Aces ready to make a miraculous play to secure a homecoming victory? No, it was several students playing their own version of slide and tackle behind the goalpost in a gigantic mud puddle created by the rain. SPLASH! SLURP! SMASH! SQUASH! Yes, the action was more intense than the last several minutes of the Aces football homecoming game.

As it is said, "when it rains it pours," and the saying was perfectly exemplified in the homecoming game against Valparaiso. In front of thousands of drenched students, fans, family, and alumni, the Aces slid to defeat against the young and tough Crusaders. Enlow field was quickly filled with water and mud as the game progressed into a giant mud wrestling match. Homecoming 1981 became known as the "mud-bowl."

Though the weather was damp, the cheerleaders continued to yell and the band continued to play. Some Aces fans were washed away, but the majority stayed on. Huddled under the covered portion of the bleachers, they hoped for a miracle. It was a day that many of us will never forget.

The football team — in the blinding, slippery rain — attempted a victory. But wet passes, claypacked uniforms, and mud-filled cleats hindered their efforts. Despite it all, supporters were not discouraged.

One person will probably remember the day longer than any one else — the homecoming queen . . . Yes, I sat in the rain, as did the rest of the court. I was worried more than the average fan about the rain because it mattered if my curls flattened and my mascara ran. I didn't want to hear gasps of horror from the crowd as I was crowned. For a while, I didn't know if there was to be a crowning ceremony because of the incessant showers. However, the rain did show mercy long enough for the court to make an appearance between downpours.

As I was being crowned, I remembered a favorite musical, "Once Upon a Mattress." The princess in story came from a swamp and swam the moat to arrive at the castle of her prince. I remember her dripping wet, looking somewhat less than glamorous, yet still bringing joy and spirit to the kingdom. I felt I had accomplished at least part of what she did; I felt dripping wet and somewhat less than glamorous. Nevertheless, I was still quite excited to be elected homecoming queen!

As special as it was to me, it is too bad that being queen didn't come with special powers over my kingdom. A queen should be able to knight the gallant professors and behead a few of the ignorant ones. A royal kingdom should be ruled with an iron hand, not an open one. Tuition would be drastically cut under my reign. If I had my way, I would give myself an honorary seat on the administrative board and outlaw Monday classes and those before noon or after two. I would have given myself and other deserving students (all of them) A's for fall quarter. If nothing else could be in my power, at least I should have been able to affect the outcome of the game. But no, none of these things were granted. I realized the reality of the situation and let a smile be my umbrella.

Actually, the entire week wasn't wet — just the day of the game itself. Spirit week was complete with decorations, banners, special concerts, films, float-building and the ever popular bonfire. All events were carefully planned and organized, though not all were well attended. Sororities, fraternities, and dorms competed for several awards. The competition ended

Students with $$$ on the Brain.

Some students spend their non-class hours doing homework, having fun with friends or just fooling around. But, to many, those hours are spent earning money working.

Whether it be as a bank teller, cashier or mechanic, UE students make up a good deal of the Evansville work-force. Students are used as office help, media personnel, athletic trainers and salespeople. The students have seemed to put their free time to work, either to pay for the cost of school, to keep themselves busy or just to have spending money.

Are the jobs worth it? The students complain about their work schedules, pay and other "typical" gripes — but all agree that it's nice to have the extra money that a job provides.

It's sometimes hard to do homework during a heavy work schedule. Yet one advantage is the possibility of making job contacts for the future. Many students have found that working during school has led to full-time employment after graduation. This is especially true in the engineering, nursing and communications departments where many students have turned their intern jobs into steady work.

For the students who do work on campus or off, the universal feeling is that nothing beats a steady income. Especially with school tuition going up and financial aid going down.

Theatre Provides A Chance

To Work And Be Seen

The smell of the grease paint isn't always that exciting. Long hours, physical and mental stress, total dedication are all requirements — having talent helps too. The University of Evansville drama department is noted for all of the above.

Presenting four productions a year may seem like very few but quality over shadows quantity in every effort.

While one attends a U of E drama production the physical effort can get lost in the magic of the moment. Students spend long hours building sets and props. Costumes must be researched and produced. This takes time and skill.

Auditions can be a frightening experience. Going through scenes in front of the director and your peers usually bring sweat to the palms of auditioneers.

After the cast yelections are made, more time is spent in practice. To some it may seem there is little reward. Yet the rewards do come.

On opening night emotions run high. That undescrivable feeling is in the air. After the audience is seated, the house lights go down and all that is left to do is go on center stage.

This years season at Shaklin Theatre included, The Legend of Sleepy Hollow, Much Ado About Nothing and The Robbers Bridegroom. Theatre goers were also treated to performances called the Season II productions in the Great Hall. Among others, And Miss Reardon Drinks A Little, was presented. These extra productions give more students a chance to perform.

The drama department was also honored again this year by being invited to the American College Theater Festival in Washington D.C. This years performance was "From Daylight to Boonville," written by Matt Williams.

Also a standout in this years productions was Christia Stinson (see page 54 for more.) who was honored with the Irene Ryan Foundation scholarship.

This season the rewards were rich for the Evansville Theatre. Under the guidance of John David Lutz, the future looks quite bright.

Theatre Gives Chance . . .

This backstage look at University of Evansville drama features Much Ado About Nothing. More than actual performing takes place when presenting a production at UE. Few patrons are exposed to the other side of the theatre, backstage.

Christia Stinson Wins National COntest; third for UET.

In a competition of 11 top drama students from around the country, UE's Christia Stinson was named as one of the two winners of $2,500 scholarships from the Irene Ryan Foundation. She is the third drama student from Evansville to win the national competition.

Sponsored by the American College Theater Festival, the contest which was held in Washington, D.C. at the Kennedy Center, brought together the winners of regional competitions.

Contestants were allowed six minutes on stage to perform before the 12 judges and an audience that included a dozen TV and movie executives. A vice president of Warner Brothers and the director of casting for CBS were also present.

Stinson played a tipsy teacher in a scene from "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little: and a troubled young woman from "Twigs."

The judges took only a few minutes to pronounce Stinson one of the two winners of the award named for its founder, the actress best known for her role as "Granny" in "The Beverly Hillbillies."

One of the audience members, Randell James, a talent scout for ABC-TV, said, Stinson "Captivates you from the moment she comes on stage, and that's what it is all about."

Stinson, who will graduate in May has not decided where she will go to graduate school.

"With the financial situation the way it is, I had wondered about going at all, but now I have a scholarship, so I can go for a while at least," she said.

The other winner of the $2,500 scholarship was Ron Marasco from Fordham University in New York.

Those Were The Days ! :

U-SING

Most musical productions are presented in theaters. This was not the case for U-Sing 1982. Due to mis-scheduling, the annual vocal extravaganza was held in the Great Hall of the Student Union Building.

Heavy attendance by students and community members caused the hall to overflow. Many spectators sat on the floor or in windows. Despite these conditions, the five entries which survived the screening process put on quite a show.

Carrying through the theme, "Those Were The Days", most groups relied on theatrics and costumes. Judged mainly on singing ability, the extras made the show more interesting for the audience and fun for the participants. U-Sing has a "mini-ture" Musical Madness flavor. Although not as grandure, it holds its own as an entertaining evening.

Sigma Alpha Iota, the musical organization which sponsors the event saw its first place award go to the women of Brentano Hall for the second consecutive year. Second place honors went to Zeta Tau Alpha as well as Best Director. The mixed group award for first place went to the men of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and the Sisters of Minerva. An over-all spirit award also went to Brentano Hall. ♠

Homecoming 1982 was full of Chills and Spills

Winter weekend produced both chills and spills in 1982.

Playing before a sell-out crowd at Roberts Municipal Stadium, the Purple Aces pulled out a spine-tingling 84-80 victory over the MCC arch rival Loyola Ramblers. Brad Leaf iced his career scoring record of 31 points and moved into the number five position on the Aces all-time scorers' roster.

During the halftime ceremonies, Hughes Hall's Deb Trnka and Phi Kappa Tau's Gary Henthorne were crowned King and Queen. Phi Mu's Jennifer Ashcraft and Sigma Phi Epsilon's William Solorzano were selected runners-up.

But, along with the chills of excitement came spills of disappointment when the band "Amusement Park" failed to arrive at the Winter Whispers dance.

According to Rick Hannibut, Resident Hall Council Chairman, the band was enroute from Chicago traveling in two vehicles, when the maintenance truck's axle broke. The truck ended up in a ditch just south of Terre Haute and the band was unable to make it to Evansville for the scheduled 9 p.m. dance.

According to Hannibut, RHC was undecided as to whether the dance would be rescheduled. As it turned out, the dance was not held. ♠

For the first time in the history of Musical Madness an all female production captured top honors.

This feat was pulled off by the combined efforts of Morton and Moore Halls.

This years Madness proceeds went to the John Hollinden Rehabilitation Fund. John was an ISUE basketball player who was injured in a car accident.

Everyone was happy to benefit such a worth cause while having so much fun.

Each production carried out the theme of "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World."

Frantic Forties was the award winning production for the women of Moore and Morton. It was a visit to a girls dorm during the war while the girls awaited the return of there soldiers.

AOPi and LXA joined forces to show what happens when love blooms in an insane asylum. There second place production was directed by Jim Michaels and Jena Fox.

"A Madieval Experience," production of Chi Omega and Phi Kappa Tau took third place honors. Directors of the production were Dave Martin and Lisa Nunn.

Brentano Hall captured the spirit award in their production of "As the Soap Bubble".

Musical Madness acts were judged on music, drama, dance, and overall effect. Not to mention originality which there was plenty of this year. ♠

'39 Races Promote Competiton

After every annual bike race there is always the celebrating, the dejection and the promises of "We'll win next year." But not everyone can have that dream of winning come true.

This year's day at the races saw two sets of winners. In the women's race the Phi Tau Little Sisters made their ride for the checkered flag a winning effort.

In the men's race Independents' I was also successful in crossing the finish line ahead of the pack.

Other superb efforts were made by Chi Omega who places second in the women's race, and Zeta Tau Alpha who were third.

For the men, Lambda Chi Alpha's I took the second spot, and Hughes Hall placed third.

The entire day saw only one accident which involved a women rider from Morton Hall. Luckily her injuries were not that serious and she was treated and released.

The bike race is always a competitive event in which participants work hard all year. Each year these efforts create a day of excitement and fun for all.

Next year there will be another bike race, and more winners. And a few promises of "We'll get 'em next year" will be on the line.

Lady Aqua Aces End Bittersweet Season

Despit setting seven new school records, the Lady Aces swim team suffered through a 1-9 season under rookie head coach Nancy Patrow. After losing their first nine matches of the season, the Lady Aces took a 76-63 win over Valparaiso University in their final match to avoid the year-long shutout.

Among the big guns for UE were Anne Powell, Teresa Olinger and Jeanette Renn. A sophomore from Bowling Green, Kentucky, Powell took first-place honors 13 times on the year. Powell was the winner in the 100-yard butterfly five times while taking the 200-yard free relay thrice.

A sophomore from Greensburg, Indiana, Olinger won 12 times. Three of those victories came in the 200-yard free relay while two came from each the 100-yard backstroke and the 100-yard butterfly.

Renn, a Clarksville, Indiana freshman, took 11 wins, including three each in the 50-yard breaststroke and the 100-yard breaststroke. She also set new school records in the two breaststroke events.

All told, Olinger was involved in four record setting performances. She set new standards in each the 50-yard butterfly and 50-yard freestyle and was in on two relay records. Olinger teamed with Powell, Beth Chapman and Susie Braun for the 200-yard freestyle record and with Renn, Powell and Braun for the 200-yard medley.

Other individual winners were Braun, seven times; Chapman, seven times; Linda Brushnahan, twice; Anda Kupsis, twice; and Karen Terranova once.

Enzler's Aqua Aces Swamp The Competition In Winning HCC Take Conference Title

After a successful 7-4 season with beards, moustaches, and all, the Aces shaved clean for the Heartland Collegiate Conference meet in Valparaiso. What difference does that make? Mostly psychological, as the feel of a freshly shaven face in the water produces an effect of less resistance and therefore will help cut down on time. Make sense? Well, to the Aces it must have because they were victorious at the HCC meet gaining their fourth conference title in five years.

"We were aiming at the conference meet all year," said Aces coach Dave Enzler. "How well we do in it makes or breaks the season. It was a true team effort."

Enzler's Aces made the season. Not only did they win the meet, but they won big, nearly shutting out the second and third place teams, Valparaiso and Butler. Nearly outscoring the combined scores of the two, the Aces came home with 212 points over Valpo's 118 and Butler's 95.

Enzler was honored as the HCC's Coach of the Year for his successful efforts throughout the season as well as for his first HCC title in his second year at UE. Evansville's Grant Gray received the Swimmer of the Year award, proving his outstanding talent by winning three individual events and two team relays.

As a team, the Aces pulled together in scoring big. Javier Perez pulled through with winning three individual events and one relay. Junior Toby Wilcox gained two individual victories and one relay. Glen Fuller kept up the pace with two individual victories in one and three-meter diving. Ed Kucer placed first in the 200-yard butterfly. Bruce Hajost defeated the three-time defending HCC champion in the 100-yard backstroke. Second and third place finishers added on the points to pull the Aces total points up, sometimes monopolizing the entire event by finishing in the first three places.

"The other teams were surprised and were expecting a close meet, but we were not surprised at all," said Enzler. "We had the depth to win it, and we did."

Six seniors will graduate this year, leaving a void which will not be easy to fill. Diver Glen Fuller, who placed first in one meter diving in five of the 11 meets and first in three-meter diving seven times during the season, not including his two victories at the HCC meet, will be missed next season. Blaine Gerhard will also graduate after four years on the Aqua Aces team as will Rod Gray, Ed Kucer, Craig Savage and Mark Brierton.

Gray was a member of the other three HCC championship teams and has held the school record in the 200 and 400-yard individual medley for some time; his versatility will be greatly missed. Ed Kucer, captain of the Aces will be leaving with several conference titles as well as a UE record in the 200-yard butterfly.

Savage, a freestyle swimmer, will be missed in the 400-yard relay, having placed first in that event four times this season. Brierton will be leaving the team with several first and second place finishes in that event as well as two first place finishes in 500-yard freestyle during the season.

Six conference champions will return next year as well as several HCC runners-up who are expected to swim into the championship position next year.

By winning three of their last four matches, the Lady Aces tennis team posted the winningest season in the program's history by finishing 7-7. In addition, the 1981 finish marked only the second time a Lady Aces squad finished at .500, with the other being in 1976 at 5-5.

Paving the way for second-year head coach Chris Payne were top-seeded Keely Porter and fifth-seeded Ruth Paurazas. A sophomore from nearby Newburgh, Indiana, Porter posted a 12-7 mark on the year and advanced to the championship of the IIAW State Tournament before losing to Lisa LaFratta of state champion Notre Dame.

Paurazas, a junior from Bloomington, Indiana, posted only a 6-12 record, but also advanced to the state championship match before losing.

Junior Judi Sorgius teamed with Porter to advance to the semi-final round of the state before falling. Sorgius finished the campaign with a 7-9 record at No. 2 singles.

Senior Melissa Happe was named the Most Improved Player with Porter copping the Most Valuable Player award.

UE Netters Rise To The Top

A second-place finish in the Heartland Collegiate Conference and a third-place showing in the Midwestern City Conference highlighted the winningest season in Aces tennis history.

UE's top four players were neatly invincible for rookie head coach Doug Cash as the Aces posted a sterling 17-8 record. Top seeded Mark Hord finished with a 16-8 record while No. 2 Dean Hall went 25-3. Dave Barron posted a 21-9 mark at No. 3 in his first year with the Aces while former Pakistan National Junior Champion Mohsen Mafeez went 17-5 playing No. 4.

A junior from Terre Haute, Indiana, Hord earned his third straight Most Valuable Player award in the Heartland Conference tournament. Hord was the league's winner at No. 1.

Hall, an Evansville native who copped the MVP award as a freshman, won his fourth consecutive conference title. Barron and Hafeez also won HCC crowns.

Evansville' big four all made it to the championship match of the Midwestern City Conference before bowing out. All four finished second. In doubles play, the teams of Hord and Hall and Barron and Hafeez both finished third.

Swinger Howerton's Hot In Aces Top Spot

When most people think of the game of golf, they remember their grandfather going out on a Sunday afternoon to "hit a few". They may remember watching a tournament on television; listening to whispering sportscasters describe a chip shot out of sand trap. Some, who play the game, think of the time they almost aced the ninth hole.

When UofE's Jeff Howerton thinks of the game of golf, he has almost an entire lifetime of memories.

Howerton's first memories of the game begin with childhood when he would watch his father sit in front of the television for hours watching golf tourneys. Howerton would wonder how his father could sit and watch such a boring thing.

At the age of twelve, Howerton's father was taking him to the golf course regularly. After he had a "swing" at it, he couldn't wait to join his father in front of the television to watch "boring" golf tournaments.

Not long after Howerton became interested in watching tournaments, he began playing in them. Golf became his favorite sport.

"I enjoy golf so much because it is so individual and so different from any other sport," says Howerton.

Evansville's No. 1 player practiced the game every chance he got. No matter what the season was, or the time of day, he could be found practicing his shots.

"Sometimes I would get a kidded for playing in the snow or in sub-zero weather," he remarked. "I would stand out in the freezing cold and play just trying to remember a few months ago when I was standing in the same place in a T-shirt and burning up! I was constantly striving to perfect my game."

Howerton's dedication paid off. Upon his graduation from Evansville's North High School, the University of Kentucky offered him a scholarship. Howerton took the Wildcat offer and attended UK his freshman year.

"I really enjoyed being part of the team at UK. We had a great team," said Howerton.

However, the team's greatness and the scholarship weren't enough to keep the Hoosier in Kentucky. The sun shone brighter on his old Evansville home, so he returned.

With his vast experience and innumerable medalist titles, Howerton holds the top spot in Aces golf. During his sophomore year at UE, he was named to the All-Heartland Collegiate Conference team. Both his junior and senior years he was HCC medalist as well as being named to the all-conference team. His season averages are below 75 and his tournament averages run below 72.

"I would like to see if I could improve enough to go pro," says the linksman. "That is one of my ambitions."

With Jeff Howerton and John Vernasco leading the way, the Aces golf team tied for first in the Heartland Collegiate Conference and took a solid third in the tough Midwestern City Conference.

A senior from Evansville, Howerton took the medalist honors at the Heartland meet, held in the fall. Howerton shot a 143 for the two rounds and was tied with teammate Craig Reiner for top prize, but won the honors in a special playoff.

The Aces trailed by 10 strokes after the first day of play, but shot consistently on the second to pull into a tie with Valpariso University.

Freshman Tennis Guyer also places well in the meet, taking home third place.

After missing fall season because of his commitment to the football team, Vernasco joined the Aces in the spring and showed his worth with a number of fine showings. Vernasco was the medalist as the Aces won the UE Invitational and was the top finishing UE player at the MCC tournament.

Rip 'Em Up,
Tear 'Em Up ...
ACES!

Five touchdowns, five extra points and a field goal may not seem like much spread over an 11-game season. But to head coach Randy Rodgers and his football Aces, those few points were the difference between sweet success and bitter disappointment.

Had the Aces scored those 38 points at the right time of selected games, they would have finished 7-4 overall and 5-2 in the Heartland Collegiate Conference, good enough for the loop's crown.

But the points didn't come. The Aces finished with their second consecutive 3-8 mark (2-5 HCC).

Perhaps in what was an omen, the Aces opened with a strong defensive showing at Reitz Bowl September 5th against the highly touted Division 1-AA powerhouse Western Kentucky University. Untimely turnovers gave the Hilltoppers three easy touchdowns as UE came out on the short end of a 35-7 verdict.

Following a 45-16 setback from the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire the next week, Rodgers' crew pulled to .500 with a two-game winning streak to close out the month.

But the wheels came off in October and November as UE went six weeks without a victory before closing with a 14-12 verdict over Georgetown College.

Coached by Larry Marfise, the Aces defense shined, even in the losses. Spearheaded by nose-guard Carl Bellew and linebacker Phil Burk, UE's Purple Crunch Bunch consistently held the opposing team's offense in check.

Against Franklin, the Aces controlled the nation's top passer, Grizzly quarterback Steve Wray, in a 14-0 loss to the HCC's eventual tri-champions.

UE riddled St. Joseph's Mike Houston, also one of the nation's top passers, with five interceptions. And against Valparaiso, they held the Crusaders without a first down after the opening series of the second half amid the rain and mud at Enlow Field during homecoming.

But while the defense looked awesome, Evansville's offense looked awful.

Prior to the final win over Georgetown, the Aces hadn't scored over 10 points in six weeks. In addition, UE went nearly 17 straight quarters without scoring a touchdown.

Magical Numbers Elude Football Squad.

After missing three games, he returned as a wide receiver.

One of Vernasco's favorite targets went down against Franklin as junior receiver Jay Barnett suffered a separated shoulder.

With so many of the veterans experiencing trouble, the bulk of the offensive load went to underclassmen, mainly sophomore quarterback Reed Johnson and freshman tailback Bubby Lewis.

A native of Bedford, Indiana, Johnson stepped in when Vernasco went down. Despite 16 interceptions, the 6-3, 200-pounder hit on 49.7 percent of his passes for 876 yards and a pair of touchdowns. In addition to the late season playing time, Johnson started the Southeast Missouri game, UE's first win of the year.

Nicknamed "Bubby" during his playing days in the Eastern Kentucky hills as a high school All-American, Lewis ripped for 671 yards as the once dormant Aces running game began to return to life. The first UE back to rush for over 600 yards in a season since Albert Folden turned the trick in 1975, Lewis scored six touchdowns. The 5-11, 200-pounder ripped off a 55-yard scoring jaunt against Butler (the first touchdown run of over 50 yards since Larry Wood's 51-yarder in 1976). Lewis finished with 129 yards against the Bulldogs, the first time an Aces back broke the 100-yard barrier since Ondra Berry in 1979.

Defensively, the Aces were again led by senior Bellew. An honorable mention All-Heartland selection, Bellew terrorized the opposition with 94 tackles, including 16 for loss and eight quarterback sacks.

Burk, a senior transfer from Inver Hills Community College in Minnesota, recorded 85 tackles on the campaign and added three interceptions from his inside linebacker spot in the Aces 3-4 defense.

Junior safety Mark Hoffman, a converted quarterback who played QB for a few downs after Vernasco was injured, led the squad in interceptions with four. Sophomore Ty Chiesa added three.

With only six starters of a possible 22 graduating, the Aces have loads of experience returning for 1982.

Maybe they can find those "magic" 38 points. ♠

Lady Aces Finish Fourth In AIAW Volleyball Regionals

It was a good year for coach Linda Wambach and her volleyball Aces who finished fourth in the AIAW Volleyball Regionals, captured their first state championship and found themselves rated No. 13 during the second half of the season on the AIAW Division II poll.

Before traveling to the eight-team round-robin regional action in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, the Evansville squad captured their first state championship by downing top-seeded Butler and St. Joseph.

Looking back over the 42-10 season, Wambach recalls having positive thoughts after the team's first tourney. That weekend, the Lady Aces won a four-game series against Franklin and a five-game series with unbeaten St. Joseph. Wambach was a bit more confident when her squad defeated their first Division I opponent, ISU-Terre Haute, in the last regular season

Although Wambach was disappointed with losses to Bellarmine and Bethel, most of the season went as expected. "Overall, we performed well in the season," said Wambach, "So I thought that we would do good in the tourney. We peaked at the state tourney in the St. Joseph match. From that point on, it was a good performance, but not our best."

Seniors Robin Owen, Mary Ellen Greaney and Kris Neindorf and sophomore Jenny Schulz were the nucleus of this year's squad according to Wambach. Several others agreed with Wambach and awarded the seniors for their talents. Greaney and Neindorf were selected to the all-state team. Greaney was also chosen to the all-state tournament teams and the Midwest all-tournament team. Owen was awarded the Kiwanis Award for the Lady Aces.

Team awards are given annually to the players whose statistics show their efforts. This year, Greaney received spiking with her .320 percent. Schultz took honors in both blocking and serving with 71 blocks and a 94 serving percentage. Owen captured the receiving award making 37 digs.

"Robin Owen and Mary Ellen Greaney are the mainstays of the program" explained Wambach. "This was their best year ever. Robin's defensive performances were overshadowed, however, because of Mary Ellen's good offensive efforts. Neindorf is also a big part of the program as our setter but she is rarely recognized because of her position.

One surprise for Wambach was newcomer Kim Seib. "Seib was the most consistent player and really improved," said Wambach. "She soon became a real threat to the opponent."

Lady Aces Have Great Season; Go To Regional

Behind the sparkling play of guards Rhonda Smith and Shelly Brand, the Lady Aces basketball team advances to the first round of the AIAW Midwest Regional before dropping a 74-62 decision to Eastern Illinois and closing with an 18-7 record.

Coach Linda Wambach's troops earned their way to the regional, held at Loyola University in Chicago, by posting an 18-6 record during the regular season. The Lady Aces got an at-large bid to the regional after being eliminated from the district tournament with a 71-66 loss to Indiana Central.

Had the tournament been held in Evansville, UE might well have swept it all. The Lady Aces were 13-0 in town, including 12 wins at Carson Center and one at Roberts Stadium as a preliminary to the men's game against Loyola on January 23.

After opening with a 4-3 record, the Lady Aces rolled off an eight-game winning streak during January to improve to 12-3. Included in those wins was a 73-69 win over Indiana State University-Evansville. Wambach's crew also handed the Lady Eagles an 81-76 setback later in the year.

In addition to the good win-loss record, the Lady Aces set a number of individual marks. Freshman Shelly Brand poured in a team-high 408 points on the year to better Rhonda Smith's single-season record 338 from a year earlier. Brand's total after only one year was good enough to place her seventh on the UE all-time scoring list.

Firmly planted atop that list is Smith. With another good year, in which she scored 328 points, Smith increased her career total to 971. With one year remaining, Smith should become the first woman at UE of score over 1,000 points in a career.

Senior Robin Owen pumped in 238 points her final season, good enough to move her career total to 644 and second on the list. Sophomore Jenny Schulz is fourth with 495 points.

Lady Aces Guard Combo Hard To Stop

In his song, Randy Newman said that short people had no reason to live. He was wrong. At UE, two shorter members of the women's basketball team have a very good reason for their existence on the team — they are the Lady Aces offense.

According to coach Linda Wambach, the two players make for the best guard combination she has had during three years at Evansville.

Although Rhonda Smith and Shelly Brand are 5-5 and 5-6 respectively, the two combine their efforts to pose a real scoring threat to any of the Aces opponents. Together, these two players have the ability, the determination and the confidence to be excellent guards.

"Brand and Smith are excellent guards," said

Wambach. "They are real hustlers yet they each have their own style of play." Reflecting each guard's playing ability, Wambach finds Smith more aggressive, yet also more foul prone. "She (Smith) is also a much faster passer which allows for better assists," stated Wambach. "Brand, on the other hand," recalled Wambach, "is good at pulling up her run for a jump shot. She also has more speed and confidence that Rhonda had as a freshman, but seems to lack leadership on the floor."

Almost any coach would like to have the dynamic duo that Wambach's Aces possess. "The guard combo makes for bigger scoring threats to our opponents." "Both guards have excellent un-guarded shots. With their ability to shoot from outside, at least one of them is open most of the time. This prevents the opponent from keying on any one player. They also work well together and are unselfish team players."

There is no doubt that Brand and Smith will offer the UE program more opportunity than ever before to score big and go on to future outstanding seasons.

Greek Life Is Like Any Other . . .

There is a phase of college life that select individuals are allowed to participate in. That being fraternity or sorority life. Many times looked upon as snobs or wierd by Independents, greek men and women are just like any other college student. They attend classes, do home-work, party and pay tuition bills with the same complaints G.D.I.'s have.

One difference is however, that some greek men are able to live off campus in their fraternity's house. No sorority at UE has been granted this privledge as yet. (more on page 195)

Later in the year TKE fraternity held an all day party which featured three local bands and something new to UE — mud wrestling. Participants and spectators enjoyed the event which is certain to return in the future. Money raised by TKE went to the St. Jukes Children's Hospital.

The men of Phi Kappa Tau held their annual derby day which saw proceeds for the American Cancer Society. Chi Omega Kim Swenson was named Derby Queen and Alpha Omicron Pi won the days competition in pyramid building, obstical course and other activities. Chi Omega, Alpha Phi and Brentano Hall all tied in the events.
